

Otto's Inn – Farmhouse: Cinque Terre, Ligurian Coast

Summary

This luxury farmhouse in the Cinque Terre region is a real find on the Ligurian Coast. It's tucked away in a small hillside village on the edge of the Cinque Terre National Park, so is perfect for walking holidays in Liguria. The area is famous for its stunning countryside, pretty seaside towns and hidden coastlines. The stylish accommodation and panoramic terraces at this pretty farmhouse are perfect for relaxing after a day's walking, biking or watersports at the beach. With the designer shops of glamorous Portofino just along the coast, and Genoa (or Genova), the European Capital of Culture 2004, a short drive away, there's something for everyone at this good value Cinque Terre farmhouse.

Details

This is a stylish property, with great attention to detail and stunning views. The fresh, contemporary rooms offer spacious accommodation, ideal for families and the whole place can be hired by small groups. The bathrooms are very luxurious and perfect for a long soak after an active day. We've discovered that budget accommodation in this area tends to be of very poor quality, so this farmhouse is a real find!

Otto's Inn is a great base from which to discover unspoilt Liguria. The vast Cinque Terre National Park is right next door. Waiting to be explored are marine reserves, fabulous walking and biking trails and pretty fishing villages. A less energetic way to explore is by scooter - meander along the lanes cutting through the terraced hillsides, with sea views far below. The hotel will make you a packed-lunch for active days out.

Lazy days can be spent at Levanto Lido, on the well kept public beaches (one with pool), where you can even try canoeing and surfing. A day out to Genoa is not to be missed, and stylish Portofino and Santa Margherita are just along the coast. This is where the jet-set hang out, so it's the place for designer shopping and people watching. The evenings at Otto's Inn are relaxed affairs. The inhabitants of the tiny village in which it is set, emerge to exchange gossip with their neighbours and guests can enjoy the wholesome local food served at the farmhouse terrace restaurant, with the valley and their soft chatter below.

An absolutely wonderful stay at Otto's Inn. The staff were fantastic and the vistas the Inn commands are incomparable.
